Albert's Summary

If the success of a star management company can be measured by its stocks, YG Entertainment is at the top of the chain. As of the end of last year, YG Entertainment CEO Yang Hyun-suk reportedly reached over 185 billion won in stock wealth from his stake in the company. This bumps SM Entertainment Chairman Lee Soo-man down to second place on the list of richest celebrities by stock value with almost 150 billion won. The list continues with actor Bae Yong-joon in third with almost 55 billion won, and JYP Entertainment CEO Park Jin-young in fourth with just over 23 billion won.

YG's shoot to the top has been fueled by its steady success with artists such as Psy and Big Bang, along with a decline in SM's stock value on KOSDAQ in 2014. Over the past year, SM shares have been hit by internal disputes with and the eventual departure of popular artists such as Jessica of Girls' Generation and Luhan of EXO.

No one can say for how long Yang Hyun-suk can hold onto his crown, but one thing's for sure: it's a constant race, and anyone lower on the list will find it hard to beat out the "Big Three."
